403 Smokering Drive, Robeson, PA 19551 - The columned porch and stone accent façade dress up the exterior of this semi-detached home. Well-planned living spaces including a first-floor master suite highlight the interior. You are welcomed into a bright windowed living room set off by a vaulted ceiling. The living space is centered with a modified galley kitchen that serves with the help of an eating bar. The semi-formal dining area opens onto a private deck that is perfect for those summer time grilling parties. The first floor master is a dream come true; the bath has a double bowled sink and large linen closet. A powder room is hidden in the alcove leading to a full basement that is ideal for those future expandable ideas for game or office spaces. An open banistered staircase leads to the two large bedrooms sharing a generous sized hall bath on the second floor.
